

This year's theme is Teaching the Value of a Tree. Many of us were taught the value of a dollar as a child, but imagine if we also taught our children the value of a tree. From our economy and our ecosystem to our spirituality, trees provide many benefits. Explore this subject with us, so together we can teach the next generation about trees.

KEYNOTE SPEAKER

Guy Sternberg

As our keynote speaker this year, Guy Sternberg presents "The Diversity and Majesty of Bur Oak." Sternberg will share images of bur oak trees throughout the nation that will inspire and showcase the value of these majestic trees. He is the founding president of the International Oak Society and the director of Starhill Forest Arboretum, which includes the most comprehensive Plant Collection Network certified oak collection in Northern America, and the author/photographer of many books and articles about trees.
